That's right. 25 years ago today, PlayStation released the original PlayStation (the red one that is) and we've been on a never-ending journey ever since. Here's to another quarter century and being here to share all those awesome moments with you all. We've had a lot of ups and downs in those 25 years, but we've always been here for you guys and we're looking forward to the next 25. When I talk to younger PlayStation veterans, the most common question I'm asked is where to find their favorite PlayStation moment. Here's the answer... Funny story about this game though. We made the game for the Dreamcast in 1993 but it was canceled at release. I also remember when we changed it from a 16 bit game to a 32 bit game. We really wanted to be one of the first games to utilize PSOne's power. I also remember when we changed the voice over to an anime style and you could still jump when you were on the ground, with the exception of some instances like giant bats, etc. I remember I was in the PSX exhibition at the time and some of the other guys said that BATS was kind of cheap compared to the final game. I felt we had always been on a mission to be the best RPG ever. I never felt like we were low on quality. Even after all this time, I still remember how long it took us to decide on the weapons, etc. for this game. Forgive me for rambling but most of the other guys
